R, r /ɑː/.

The eighteenth letter of the modern English alphabet and the seventeenth of the ancient Roman one, derived through early Greek ρ from Phoenician, repr. the twentieth letter of the early Semitic alphabet. In general R denotes a post-alveolar voiced consonant, in the formation of which the point of the tongue approaches the palate a little way behind the teeth; in many languages this is accompanied by a vibration of the tongue, in which case the R is said to be 'trilled' or 'rolled'. This trill is almost or altogether absent in the R of mod. standard British English, which moreover retains its consonantal value only when it precedes a vowel (see linking r s.v. LINKING 1); in other positions it has been vocalized to an /ə/ sound, and even this is entirely lost after certain vowels. In Scotland R is still often strongly trilled in all positions, and other varieties of the sound are characteristic of certain districts of the UK. In other parts of the English-speaking world there are similarly varieties both with R only before vowels and with retention of its consonantal value in other historical positions. By southern British speakers R is frequently introduced between word-final and word-initial vowels (see intrusive r s.v. INTRUSIVE adjective 2). In all periods of English, R has exercised a marked effect on a preceding vowel, in modern English being associated with the lengthening of it. Pl. R's, Rs.

▸I 1 The letter and its sound.

r-colour the modification of a vowel sound caused by a following r, with retraction of the tongue, as in one US pronunciation of bird.

r month a month in whose name an r appears, as being one of those (September to April) during which oysters are in season. the three Rs reading, writing, and arithmetic (as the basis of elementary education).

▸II Symbolical uses.

2 Used to denote serial order; applied e.g. to the eighteenth (or often the seventeenth, either I or J being omitted) group or section, sheet of a book, etc.

rad /rad/ adjective[1] & adverb. Long obsolete exc. dial.
[ORIGIN Old English hræd, hræd = Old High German hrad, hrat, Old Norse hraðr (Middle Swedish radh).]
▸ A adjective. Quick, hasty; active, ready; eager, elated. OE.
▸ †B adverb. Quickly, readily, soon. ME–E16.

rad /rad/ adjective[2]. obsolete exc. Scot. ME.
[ORIGIN Old Norse hræddr (Swedish rädd, Danish ræd), from hræða frighten.]
Frightened, afraid, alarmed.

rad /rad/ adjective[3]. slang (orig. N. Amer.). L20.
[ORIGIN Perh. abbreviation of RADICAL adjective.]
Fine, excellent; admirably up to date; outstandingly enjoyable.

RADA ˈrɑːdə/ abbreviation.
Royal Academy of Dramatic Art.

Rada /ˈrɑːdə/ noun. E20.
[ORIGIN App. from Allada, a former principality of Dahomey (now Benin).]
(The worship of) a group of deities of W. African derivation venerated in Haiti.

radappertization /raˌdapətaɪˈzeɪʃ(ə)n/ noun. Also -isation. M20.
[ORIGIN from RAD(IATION + French appertisation method of heat treatment of food, from N.-F. Appert (d. 1841), French inventor: see -IZATION.]
The treatment of food with ionizing radiation so as to reduce the number of micro-organisms sufficiently to prevent spoilage in the absence of recontamination. Cf. RADICIDATION, RADURIZATION.
■ raˈdappertize verb trans. treat by radappertization (chiefly as radappertized ppl adjective) L20.

radar /ˈreɪdɑː/ noun. Orig. US. M20.
[ORIGIN from radio detection and ranging.]
1 A system (more fully primary radar) for detecting the presence of objects at a distance and determining their position or motion by transmitting short radio waves and detecting or measuring the return of these after being reflected by the objects; a similar system (more fully secondary radar) in which a return signal is automatically transmitted by the target when it receives the outgoing waves. Also, (an) apparatus or an installation used for this system. Cf. RADIOLOCATION. M20. ▸b transf. A detection system which works on the principle of radar but uses signals other than radio waves; esp. lidar or sonar. M20.
2 fig. a (A capacity for) intuitive perception or awareness; a special sensitivity. M20. ▸b The means by which a person or thing registers on the consciousness of a person or group. L20.

a Mirabella She had a kind of radar for other eccentrics. b Wire During the last 30 years he has disappeared off the radar for long periods.

– COMB.: radar beacon a radio transmitter that automatically transmits a return signal (esp. a coded identification signal) when it receives a signal from a radar transmitter; radar fence a line of radar stations for giving warning of intrusions into the air space behind it; radar gun a hand-held device which uses Doppler radar to measure the speed of a moving object, as a vehicle or the ball in tennis, cricket, etc.; radar map: compiled from radar observations; radar net a network of radar stations, esp. a radar fence; radar picket a picket boat specially equipped with radar; radar plotter a person who plots the direction and course of objects from radar observations; radar scanner a rotatable aerial for transmitting and receiving radar signals; radar screen the screen of a radarscope; radar-sonde a sonde which can be tracked by radar to obtain information on wind speed, wind direction, etc.; radar-track verb trans. track by radar; radar trap a speed trap in which a motorist's speed is measured using radar and the Doppler effect.
■ radarscope noun (the screen of) a cathode-ray oscilloscope on which radar echoes are represented for observation M20.

RADC abbreviation.
Royal Army Dental Corps.

Radcliffian /radˈklɪfɪən/ adjective. Also -ean. E19.
[ORIGIN from Radcliffe (see below) + -IAN.]
Of or characteristic of the English Gothic novelist Ann Radcliffe (1764–1823) or her works.

raddle /ˈrad(ə)l/ noun[1] & verb[1]. E16.
[ORIGIN Rel. to RED adjective: cf. RUDDLE noun[1].]
▸ A noun. Red ochre, ruddle. E16.
▸ B verb trans. Paint or mark with raddle; colour coarsely with red or rouge. M17.
■ raddled adjective (a) that has been raddled; (b) fig. (of a person, face, etc.) worn, worn out: L17.

raddle rad(ə)l/ noun[2] & verb[2]. obsolete exc. dial. M16.
[ORIGIN Anglo-Norman reidele, Old French reddalle (mod. ridelle).]
▸ A noun. 1 †a The rail of a cart. rare. Only in M16. ▸b A wooden bar with upright pegs for keeping the threads of the warp in place as it is wound upon the beam. M19.
2 A thin rod, wattle, or lath, fastened to or twisted between upright stakes or posts to form a fence, partition, or wall. L16. ▸b A hurdle, door, hedge, etc., made with intertwined rods etc. L17.
▸ B verb trans. Weave or twist together, intertwine. L17.

radeau raˈdəʊ/ noun. M18.
[ORIGIN French, from Provençal radel, from Latin dim. of ratis raft.]
A raft; spec. (MILITARY) a floating battery.

radge radʒ/ adjective & noun. slang, chiefly Scot. M19.
[ORIGIN Prob. alt. of RAGE noun.]
▸ A adjective. Wild, crazy, or violent. M19.
▸ B noun. Orig., a lascivious woman. Now, a mad or violent person. E20.

radi- combining form see RADIO-.

radial /ˈreɪdɪəl/ adjective & noun. LME.
[ORIGIN medieval Latin radialis, from Latin RADIUS: see -AL[1].]
▸ A adjective. †1 Of a cauterizing instrument: thin and sharply pointed. Only in LME.
2 Of light, beams, etc.: proceeding as rays from a common centre; of or pertaining to a ray or rays. L16.
3 Arranged like rays or the radii of a circle; having the position or direction of a radius; diverging from a common centre. M18. ▸b BOTANY & FORESTRY. Designating a longitudinal section or cut along a radius or diameter, or the surface so exposed. L19. ▸c Of a road, route, etc.: running directly from a town or city centre to an outlying district (esp. as part of a system of such roads). M20.
4 Having, involving, or characterized by lines or parts extending or proceeding from a centre; acting or moving along lines proceeding from a centre. M18. ▸b PHYSICAL GEOGRAPHY. Of (a pattern of) drainage: involving a number of divergent streams flowing outwards from a central elevated region. M20. ▸c Designating a tyre in which the layers of fabric have their cords running at right angles to the circumference of the tyre and the tread is strengthened by further layers round the circumference. M20.
5 ANATOMY & ZOOLOGY. Of, pertaining to, or associated with the radius; designating or situated on the outer (thumb) side of the forearm or foreleg, as radial artery, radial nerve, radial vein, etc. M18.
– SPECIAL COLLOCATIONS & COMB.: radial axle an axle (of a railway carriage, tram, etc.) which on a curve of the track assumes the position of a radius to that curve. radial engine a type of internal-combustion engine (used chiefly in aircraft) having its cylinders fixed radially around a rotating crankshaft. radial-flow adjective designating or employing a turbine, pump, etc., in which fluid is forced to move at right angles to an axis of rotation. radial keratotomy OPHTHALMOLOGY an operation for myopia, in which a number of equally-spaced radial cuts are made through part of the thickness of the cornea in such a way as to flatten its curvature. radial-ply = sense 4c above. radial symmetry: about an axis. radial velocity ASTRONOMY the velocity of a star or other body along the line of sight of an observer.
▸ B noun. 1 ZOOLOGY. Each of a set of radial structures, as fin rays, echinoderm ossicles, etc. L19.
2 ANATOMY. A radial nerve, artery, etc. L19.
3 A radial tyre, road, engine, etc. E20.
4 RADIO. Each of a number of wires attached radially (and freq. horizontally) to a vertical aerial to approximate the reception and transmission characteristics of a sheet of material. M20.
5 RADAR. A straight line joining all points on the same bearing from a radar station. M20.
■ radially adverb in a radial manner, in the form of radii or rays M17.

radiale reɪdɪˈeɪli/ noun. Pl. -lia -lɪə/. L19.
[ORIGIN mod. Latin use as noun of neut. of medieval Latin radialis (sc. os bone): see RADIAL.]
1 = RADIAL noun 1. rare. L19.
2 ANATOMY & ZOOLOGY. The carpal situated on the radial side of the wrist or carpus. L19.

radian /ˈreɪdɪən/ noun. L19.
[ORIGIN from RADIUS + -an.]
MATH. A unit of plane angle (now in the SI), equal to that subtended at the centre of a circle by an arc equal to the radius, 2π radians being equal to 360°.

radiance /ˈreɪdɪəns/ noun. M16.
[ORIGIN formed as RADIANCY: see -ANCE.]
1 The quality of being radiant. M16.
†2 = RADIATION 1c. rare. Only in 19.
3 PHYSICS. The flux of radiation emitted per unit solid angle in a given direction by a unit area of a source. E20.

radiancy /ˈreɪdɪənsi/ noun. M17.
[ORIGIN from RADIANT: see -ANCY.]
= RADIANCE 1.

radiant /ˈreɪdɪənt/ adjective & noun. LME.
[ORIGIN Latin radiant- pres. ppl stem of radiare emit rays: see -ANT[1].]
▸ A adjective. 1 Emitting rays of light; appearing in the form of rays (of light); shining, bright, splendid, dazzling. LME. ▸b Represented as emitting rays, esp. of light. E17. ▸c Of a person or a person's eyes, looks, etc.: bright or beaming with joy, hope, love, etc. E17.

M. L. KING The radiant light of the rising moon. K. LINES The immortal gods were . . radiant in . . beauty. I. MURDOCH The quiet water was a . . radiant blue. c A. N. WILSON Her face glowing with a radiant smile. A. FINE He had a huge smile on his face. In fact, he looked positively radiant.

2 Pertaining to or emitting electromagnetic radiation; (esp. of heat) transmitted by (electromagnetic) radiation, rather than conduction or convection. LME. ▸b Designed to send out radiant heat. M20.

3 Chiefly BIOLOGY. (Having parts) extending radially. M19.

– SPECIAL COLLOCATIONS: radiant efficiency the ratio of the radiant flux emitted to the power consumed. radiant energy energy in the form of (usu. electromagnetic) radiation. radiant flux the rate of flow of radiant energy. radiant heat heat transmitted by radiation; infrared radiation. radiant point a central point from which rays or radii proceed; spec. in ASTRONOMY, the apparent focal point of a meteoric shower. radiant power = radiant flux above. radiant region ASTRONOMY the region of the sky from which a meteoric shower appears to originate.

▸B noun. 1 a PHYSICS. A point, small region, or object from which light or heat radiates. E18. ▸b Each of the heating units or elements in a radiant heater. E20.

2 ASTRONOMY. A radiant point or region. M19.

■ radiantly adverb M16.

Radiata /reɪdɪˈɑːtə, -ˈeɪtə/ noun[1] pl. E19.

[ORIGIN mod. Latin (see below), neut. pl. of Latin radiatus: see RADIATE adjective & noun.]

ZOOLOGY (now chiefly hist.). Members, collectively, of a former division of the animal kingdom comprising animals with radial structure, including most coelenterates and echinoderms.

radiata /reɪdɪˈɑːtə/ noun[2]. Chiefly NZ. M20.

[ORIGIN mod. Latin (see below), fem. of Latin radiatus: see RADIATE adjective & noun.]

In full radiata pine. The Monterey pine, Pinus radiata, grown for timber in New Zealand.

radiate /ˈreɪdɪət/ adjective & noun. M17.

[ORIGIN Latin radiatus pa. pple of radiare: see RADIATE verb, -ATE[2], -ATE[1].]

▸A adjective. 1 Having rays or parts proceeding from a centre; having radial symmetry; (of the capitulum in certain composite plants) having a circle of ligulate florets surrounding a central region of tubular florets. M17.

2 Arranged like rays, diverging from a centre. E19.

▸B noun. 1 ZOOLOGY. A member of the Radiata. Now rare or obsolete. M19.

2 A classical coin with rays issuing from a central device. M20.

■ radiately adverb M19.

radiate /ˈreɪdɪeɪt/ verb. E17.

[ORIGIN Latin radiat- pa. ppl stem of radiare furnish with or emit rays, from radius ray: see -ATE[3].]

▸I verb intrans. 1 Spread from or as from a centre; diverge from a central point. E17. ▸b Converge to or towards a centre. rare. M19. ▸c BIOLOGY. Of an animal or plant group: diversify or spread into new habitats. E20.

E. HEMINGWAY Lines . . radiated from . . each eye. A. TOFFLER Consequences of . . events radiate . . around the world.

2 a Emit rays of light; shine brightly. M17. ▸b Orig., emit rays of heat. Now more widely, emit energy of any kind in the form of rays or waves. M19.

3 Of light or heat: issue in rays. E18.

▸II verb trans. 4 Illuminate (lit. & fig.). rare. E17.

5 a Emit (light or heat) in rays. More widely, emit (energy of any kind) in the form of rays or waves. (Foll. by away.) L18. ▸b fig. Transmit as from a centre; exude an aura or atmosphere of (love, happiness, power, etc.). E19. ▸c Transmit (radio waves); broadcast. E20.

a Nature Stars radiate their heat away. b D. FRASER He radiated confidence. A. LEE She radiated a fresh scent.

■ radiating adjective (a) that radiates; (b) characterized by radiation: E18. radiature /ˈreɪdɪətʃə/ noun (rare) (an instance of) radiation E18.

radiated /ˈreɪdɪeɪtɪd/ adjective. M17.

[ORIGIN from RADIATE verb + -ED[1].]

1 Provided with rays; made or depicted with radiating projections. M17.

2 Arranged like rays; = RADIATE adjective 2. M18.

3 Having parts or markings arranged like rays or radii. Cf. RADIATE adjective 1. L18.

radiated mole the star-nosed mole.

4 Of or characterized by a radial arrangement. L18.

5 Of light, energy, a signal, etc.: emitted by radiation. E20.

6 = IRRADIATED ppl adjective (a). rare. E20.

radiation /reɪdɪˈeɪʃ(ə)n/ noun. LME.

[ORIGIN Latin radiatio(n-), formed as RADIATE verb: see -ATION.]

1 a The action or condition of sending out rays of light. Now rare exc. as passing into sense 1c. LME. ▸b Orig., a ray or beam of light emitted by a radiant body (usu. in pl.). Now, energy transmitted in the form of (esp. electromagnetic) waves or moving subatomic particles; spec. (in non-techn. use) ionizing radiation (e.g. from a radioactive source). L16. ▸c The emission and transmission of energy (orig. spec. of heat) in the form of waves (esp. electromagnetic waves) or moving subatomic particles. E19.

b cosmic radiation, electromagnetic radiation, gravitational radiation, infrared radiation, ionizing radiation, thermal radiation, ultraviolet radiation, X-radiation, etc. radiation dermatitis, radiation dose, radiation hazard, radiation injury, radiation level, radiation meter, radiation monitor, etc.

2 †a ASTROLOGY. = ASPECT noun 4. rare. M16–L17. ▸b Divergence from a central point; radial arrangement or structure. M17. ▸c Each of a set of radiating things or parts. M19. ▸d BIOLOGY. The spread of an animal or plant group into new areas. Also (more fully adaptive radiation), the diversification of a group into forms that fill different ecological niches. M20.

– COMB.: radiation belt PHYSICS & ASTRONOMY a region surrounding a planet where charged particles accumulate under the influence of the planet's magnetic field; radiation burn a burn caused by overexposure to ionizing radiation; radiation chemistry the branch of science that deals with chemical changes arising from the impact of ionizing radiation; radiation counter PHYSICS an instrument for counting or recording ionizing events; radiation efficiency RADIO the efficiency of conversion of input power to power radiated by an aerial etc.; radiation fog: formed when the ground loses heat by radiation and cools overlying moist air; radiation frost: formed when the ground loses heat by radiation; radiation pattern (a representation of) the directional variation in intensity of the radiation from an aerial or other source; radiation pressure mechanical pressure exerted by electromagnetic radiation or by sound waves; radiation pyrometer a pyrometer which functions by measuring radiant energy; radiation resistance the part of the electrical resistance of an aerial that is due to its radiation of power; an analogous property of a sound radiator; radiation sickness illness caused by exposure of the body to ionizing radiation, characterized by nausea, hair loss, diarrhoea, bleeding, and damage to the bone marrow and central nervous system; radiation therapy, radiation treatment radiotherapy (esp. of cancer).

■ radiational adjective E20. radiationless adjective E20.

radiative /ˈreɪdɪətɪv/ adjective. M19.

[ORIGIN from RADIATE verb + -IVE.]

Of or pertaining to radiation; occurring by means of radiation; involving or accompanied by the emission of radiation.

radiative capture capture of a particle by an atomic nucleus with accompanying emission of gamma radiation. radiative equilibrium a state of equilibrium in which the total energy flux emitted is equal to that absorbed; a state of equilibrium in which radiation is the predominant energy transport mechanism

■ radiatively adverb by means of (esp. electromagnetic) radiation; with emission of radiation: M20.

radiator /ˈreɪdɪeɪtə/ noun. M19.

[ORIGIN from RADIATE verb + -OR.]

1 A thing which radiates something (esp. light, heat, or sound waves). M19.

W. T. BRANDE Polished metals are very imperfect radiators . . of heat.

2 A device for heating a room or space by radiation and convection, consisting of a case or tank connected by pipes through which hot water, air, or steam is pumped by a central heating system. M19.

N. MAILER She has . . neglected to turn off the radiator.

3 In a liquid cooling system (as in some internal-combustion engines), a bank of thin tubes in which circulating fluid (freq. water) is cooled by the surrounding air. E20.

4 An aerial for transmitting (and often also receiving) radio waves. E20.

radical /ˈradɪk(ə)l/ adjective & noun. LME.

▸A adjective. 1 Forming the root, basis, or foundation; original, primary. LME.

S. JOHNSON The radical idea branches out.

2 a Of a quality etc.: inherent in the nature of a thing or person; fundamental. LME. ▸b Of action, change, an idea, etc.: going to the root or origin; pertaining to or affecting what is fundamental; far-reaching, thorough. M17. ▸c POLITICS. Advocating thorough or far-reaching change; representing or supporting an extreme section of a party; spec. (a) hist. belonging to an extreme wing of the Liberal Party; (b) US HISTORY seeking extreme action against the South at the time of the Civil War. Now also, left-wing, revolutionary. E19. ▸d Characterized by departure from tradition; progressive; unorthodox. E20.

a R. H. HUTTON The radical rottenness of human nature. Times Lit. Suppl. None of our individualities is radical. b Times Radical measures and socialist programmes. B. TARKINGTON Conservative people seldom form radical new habits. c W. LIPPMANN Though some . . were opposed to drastic change . . others were in favor of radical reform. Japan Times Radical students pelted police with rocks.

a radical humour = MOISTURE 2b. c radical chic (the people given to) the fashionable affectation of radical left-wing views or an associated style of dress, life, etc. radical right (the proponents of) extreme conservative or fascist views favouring group action to protect or reinstate certain social traditions.

3 MATH. Pertaining to or forming the root of a number or quantity. M16.

radical sign the sign ˇ used to indicate a root (without qualifying superscript numeral, the square root) of the number to which it is prefixed.

4 PHILOLOGY. Of or belonging to the roots of words; connected with or based on roots. L16.

radical word: having the form of or directly based on a root.

†5 ASTROLOGY. Belonging to or forming the basis of an astrological calculation. Only in 17.

6 MUSIC. Belonging to the root of a chord. M18.

7 BOTANY. Of or belonging to the root of a plant; esp. (of a leaf) springing directly from the rootstock or from the base of the stem (opp. cauline). M18.

▸B noun. 1 PHILOLOGY. a A root; a radical word or letter. M17. ▸b Any of the basic Chinese characters constituting usu. semantically significant elements in the composition of other characters and used as a means of classifying characters in dictionaries. Cf. PHONETIC noun 1. E19.

2 A basis, a fundamental thing or principle. M17.

3 MATH. a A quantity forming or expressed as a root of another quantity. M18. ▸b The radical sign. L18.

4 CHEMISTRY. Orig., an element, atom, or group of atoms which can form the basis of a compound and remain unaltered during ordinary chemical reactions. Now (a) = GROUP noun 2b; (b) = free radical s.v. FREE adjective, adverb, & noun. E19.

5 A politically radical person. E19.

philosophical radical: see PHILOSOPHICAL adjective.

4 Radio equipment; spec. a receiving set. E20.

EDWARD VIII To speak to you all over the radio.

transistor radio: see TRANSISTOR 2.
5 The radio-frequency part of the electromagnetic spectrum; radio wavelengths. M20.
▸II †6 A radio-telegram. Only in E20.
– ATTRIB. & COMB.: Esp. in the senses 'pertaining to, participating in, or transmitted as part of organized sound broadcasting', as radio announcer, radio programme, radio script, etc.; 'controlled or operated by radio, employing radio', as radio cab, radio compass, etc.; 'pertaining to or characterized by the emission of radio waves, esp. by celestial objects', as radio buoy, radio galaxy, radio noise, radio observatory, etc. Special combs., as radio amateur a person who makes a hobby of picking up, and often also transmitting, radio messages; radio astronomer a person engaged in radio astronomy; radio astronomy the branch of astronomy that deals with the interpretation of radio waves reaching the earth from space, and with the astronomical use of radio echoes; radio beacon = BEACON noun 4b; radio car equipped with a two-way radio; radio contact the state or an instance of being in communication by radio; radio-controlled adjective controlled from a distance by means of radio signals; radio energy transmitted in the form of radio waves; radio fix: see FIX noun 4; radio ham: see HAM noun[1] 5; radio horizon the line round a radio transmitter at which direct radio waves from it are tangential to the earth's surface; radio licence a licence to use a radio; radio map ASTRONOMY a diagram showing the strength of the radio emission from different parts of the sky; radio net a system of intercommunicating radio sets, operated esp. by a police force or similar body; radio network a system of radio stations for navigation, communication, or broadcasting; a sound broadcasting organization or channel; radio range (a) = radio spectrum below; (b) a radio beacon transmitting directional radio signals which can be used by aircraft to determine the bearing of the transmitter; radio shack a small building or (esp. NAUTICAL) a room housing radio equipment; radio silence deliberate abstention from radio transmission; failure to communicate by radio; radio spectrum the radio-frequency part of the electromagnetic spectrum; the spectrum of any particular source at these frequencies; radio star any discrete source of radio waves outside the solar system (rarely an actual star); radio station an installation or establishment transmitting signals by radio; a sound broadcasting establishment or organization; radio telephone: see TELEPHONE noun 2; radio telescope ASTRONOMY an apparatus or installation for detecting and recording radio waves from the sky, consisting of a large directional aerial together with a receiver and recording equipment; radio wave an electromagnetic wave with a frequency within the range used for telecommunication (usu. in pl.); radio wavelength: corresponding to a radio frequency.
■ radioless adjective M20.

radio /ˈreɪdɪəʊ/ verb. E20.
[ORIGIN from the noun.]
1 verb trans. Transmit or send (a message or information) by radio. E20. ▸b Communicate with (a person, a place) by radio. Chiefly US. M20.
2 verb intrans. Send a message etc. by radio; give information or make a request by radio. E20.

Daily Telegraph The police radioed for assistance.

radio- /ˈreɪdɪəʊ/ combining form. Before o also radi-.
[ORIGIN from RADIUS, RADIO noun, RADIOACTIVE, RADIATION: see -o-.]
1 ANATOMY. Of or pertaining to the radius and (some other part), as radio-carpal.
2 Connected with or employing radio.
3 Connected with radioactivity. ▸b Prefixed to the names of chemical elements and compounds to designate (a) a radioactive isotope (usu. one prepared artificially) of the named element, as radio-cobalt, radio-silver, etc.; (b) a compound containing a radioactive label, as radiothyroxine.
4 Connected with rays or radiation, esp. ionizing radiation.
■ radio assay noun & verb (a) noun an assay performed by measuring radioactivity from a radioisotope present in a sample; (b) verb trans. assay in this way: M20. radiocast noun & verb (US) (a) noun a radio broadcast; (b) verb trans. broadcast by radio: M20. radio-dating noun isotopic dating (e.g. radiocarbon dating) M20. radio density noun the degree to which a material will absorb ionizing radiation; radio-opacity: M20. radio-element noun a naturally radioactive element E20. radioenzymatic adjective (MEDICINE) designating a method of measuring concentrations of hormones etc. by the injection of radioactively labelled enzymes L20. radio heliograph noun (ASTRONOMY) an interferometric radio telescope system designed to record instantaneous high-resolution pictures of the sun as observed at radio wavelengths M20. radio-iodine noun a radioactive isotope of iodine; esp. iodine 131, an artificial isotope with a half-life for beta decay of about 8 days, widely used as a tracer and for radiotherapy of the thyroid gland: M20. radio-label verb & noun (BIOLOGY & CHEMISTRY) (a) verb trans. label with a radioactive isotope; (b) noun a radioactive label: M20. radioland noun the realm of radio; a region regarded as the place where radio listeners are: M20. radio ligand noun (MEDICINE) a radio-labelled compound that has a strong chemical affinity for a particular receptor L20. radiolocate verb trans. locate by means of radar (or radio) M20. radiolocation noun the determination of the position and course of ships, aircraft, etc., by means of radar (or radio) M20. radiolucency noun the state or property of being radiolucent M20. radiolucent adjective transparent to X-rays E20. radiolysis /-ˈɒlɪsɪs/ noun (CHEMISTRY) decomposition of a compound by the action of ionizing radiation M20. radiolytic adjective (CHEMISTRY) of, pertaining to, or formed by radiolysis M20. radiometal noun an alloy of nickel and iron with a high magnetic permeability M20. radio-opacity noun the state or property of being radio-opaque M20. radio-opaque adjective impervious to X-rays M20. radiopacity noun = RADIO-OPACITY E20. radio paque adjective = RADIO-OPAQUE E20. radiophare noun a navigational radio beacon E20. radiopharmaceutical adjective & noun (designating) a radioactive pharmaceutical preparation used in the diagnosis or treatment of disease or in biomedical research M20. radiophoto noun a photograph transmitted by means of radio M20. radioprotection noun the prevention or countering by chemical means of the harmful effects produced in living tissues by ionizing radiation M20. radio-resistance noun the property of being radio-resistant E20. radio-resistant adjective (esp. of living tissue) resistant to the action of ionizing radiation E20. radiotelemetry noun telemetry by means of radio M20. radio teletype noun a teleprinter which transmits and receives information by radio M20. radio telex noun a telex transmitted by radio, esp. between ship and shore L20. radiotoxic adjective possessing radiotoxicity M20. radiotoxicity noun the property of a radioactive substance of being harmful to a living organism when present in its tissue M20. radiovision noun (a) hist. a method of transmitting pictures by wire or radio; (b) the combination of a radio programme with a specially prepared film strip or series of slides, esp. as an educational aid (freq. attrib.): E20.

radioactivate /ˌreɪdɪəʊˈaktɪveɪt/ verb trans. E20.
[ORIGIN from RADIOACTIVE + -ATE[3].]
Make radioactive.
■ radioactivation noun the process of making something radioactive (radioactivation analysis = activation analysis) M20.

radioactive /ˌreɪdɪəʊˈaktɪv/ adjective. L19.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- 4 + ACTIVE.]
1 Of an atomic nucleus, a substance, etc.: (capable of) undergoing spontaneous nuclear decay involving emission of ionizing radiation in the form of particles or gamma rays. L19.
2 Of a process, phenomenon, etc.: of, pertaining to, involving, or produced by radioactivity. E20.

M. MARRIN Measure the age of the substance . . from its radioactive decay.

– SPECIAL COLLOCATIONS: radioactive equilibrium a condition in which the quantities of radioactive daughter nuclides in a material remain constant because each is formed as fast as it decays. radioactive series a series of radioactive nuclides each member of which decays into the next, together with a non-radioactive end product; the series of transformations relating such a set of nuclides. radioactive waste waste material that is radioactive, esp. spent nuclear fuel.
■ radioactively adverb by radioactive decay; with radioactive material; by means of a technique dependent on radioactivity: E20.

radioactivity /ˌreɪdɪəʊakˈtɪvɪti/ noun. L19.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + ACTIVITY.]
1 The property or condition of being radioactive; (the branch of science that deals with) the phenomena displayed by radioactive materials. Also, the radiation emitted by a radioactive material; such material itself in a dispersed form. L19.
2 ASTRONOMY. The property of emitting radio waves. M20.

radioautograph /ˌreɪdɪəʊˈɔːtə(ʊ)grɑːf/ noun. M20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + AUTO-[1] + -GRAPH.]
= AUTORADIOGRAPH noun.
■ radioautographic adjective M20. radioautography noun M20.

radiobiology /ˌreɪdɪəʊbʌɪˈɒlədʒi/ noun. E20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + BIOLOGY.]
The branch of biology that deals with the effects of radiation and radioactivity on living organisms, and with the biological application of radiological techniques.
■ radiobiologic adjective (chiefly US) E20. radiobiological adjective M20. radiobiologically adverb M20. radiobiologist noun M20 radiocarbon /ˌreɪdɪəʊˈkɑːbɒ(ə)n/ noun. M20.

[ORIGIN from RADIO- + CARBON noun.]
A radioactive isotope of carbon; spec. = carbon-14 S.V. CARBON noun.
– COMB.: radiocarbon dating a method of isotopic dating applicable to dead organic matter, in which the proportion of carbon-14 is measured and compared with the known natural abundance of the isotope.

radiochemical ˌreɪdɪəʊˈkɛmɪk(ə)l adjective & noun. E20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + CHEMICAL.]
▸A adjective. 1 Of, pertaining to, or considered in terms of radiochemistry. E20.
2 Of or pertaining to chemical changes caused by radiant energy. rare. E20.
▸B noun. A radioactive chemical. E20.
■ radiochemically adverb by a radiochemical method or process; in terms of radiochemistry: E20.

radiochemistry /ˌreɪdɪəʊˈkɛmɪstri/ noun. E20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + CHEMISTRY.]
The branch of chemistry that deals with radioactive substances.
■ radiochemist noun M20.

radio-frequency /ˈreɪdɪəʊˌfriːkw(ə)nsi/ adjective & noun. E20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO noun + FREQUENCY.]
▸A attrib. adjective. Pertaining to electromagnetic radiation with a frequency in the range used for telecommunication, greater than that of the highest audio frequency and less than that of the shortest infrared waves (i.e. between about 10^4 and 10^{11} or 10^{12} Hz); operating at or having such a frequency; employing alternating current with such a frequency. E20.
▸B noun. (Usu. as two words.) A frequency in the radio-frequency range. E20.

radiogenic /ˌreɪdɪə(ʊ)ˈdʒɛnɪk, -ˈdʒiːnɪk/ adjective. E20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + -GENIC (in sense 1 after PHOTOGENIC).]
1 Well suited for broadcasting by radio; providing an attractive subject for a radio broadcast. E20.
2 Produced by or resulting from radioactive decay or ionizing radiation. M20.
■ radiogenically adverb by means of radioactive decay M20.

radiogoniometer /ˌreɪdɪəʊgəʊnɪˈɒmɪtə/ noun. E20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + GONIOMETER.]
An apparatus for determining the direction from which radio waves are coming without using a rotating aerial.
■ radiogonio metric adjective E20. radiogonio metrical adjective M20. radiogoniometry noun direction-finding by means of a radiogoniometer E20.

radiogram /ˈreɪdɪə(ʊ)gram/ noun[1]. L19.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + -GRAM.]
1 = RADIOGRAPH noun 2. L19.
2 A radio-telegram. E20.

radiogram /ˈreɪdɪə(ʊ)gram/ noun[2]. E20.
[ORIGIN Abbreviation.]
= RADIO-GRAMOPHONE.

radio-gramophone /ˌreɪdɪəʊˈgraməfəʊn/ noun. E20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO noun + GRAMOPHONE.]
A combined radio and record player.

radiograph /ˈreɪdɪə(ʊ)grɑːf/ noun & verb. L19.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + -GRAPH.]
▸A noun. †1 An instrument by which the duration and intensity of sunshine is measured and recorded. Only in L19.
2 An image of an object produced by means of X-rays or other ionizing radiation. L19.
†3 = RADIO-TELEGRAPH. Only in E20.
▸B verb trans. Make a radiograph of; study by radiography. L19.
■ radiographer noun a person who practises radiography; a person qualified to operate radiographic equipment: L19. radio graphic adjective (a) of, pertaining to, or carried out by means of radiography; †(b) = RADIO-TELEGRAPHIC: L19. radiographical adjective (rare) L19. radiographically adverb by means of radiography; as regards radiography: L19. radiography noun (a) the science or process of making radiographs (mass radiography: see MASS noun[2] & adjective); †(b) = RADIO-TELEGRAPHY: L19.

radioimmuno- /ˌreɪdɪəʊɪˈmjʊnəʊ, -ˈɪmjʊnəʊ/ combining form.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + IMMUNO-.]
Forming terms pertaining to analytical techniques combining immunological and radioisotopic methods.
■ radioimmuno assay noun an immunological assay in which the sample is determined by allowing it to react with a prepared antiserum in competition with a known quantity of antigen labelled with a radioisotope, the extent of reaction being measured from the radiation emitted M20. radioimmuno chemical adjective deriving from both immunology and radiochemistry; employing radioisotopically labelled antigens and antibodies as reagents for chemical analysis M20. radioimmunoelectrophoresis noun immunoelectrophoresis carried out using radioisotopically labelled samples M20. radioimmuno logic adjective (chiefly US), radioimmuno logical adjectives combining radiological and immunological methods; of or pertaining to radioimmunology: M20. radioimmuno logically adverb by radioimmunological means L20. radioimmunology noun the application of radiological techniques in immunology L20. radioimmunoprecipitation noun the use of a radioisotopically labelled antigen or antibody in a precipitin test M20.

radioisotope /ˌreɪdɪəʊˈʌɪsətəʊp/ noun. M20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + ISOTOPE.]
A radioactive isotope.
■ radioisotopic /-ˈtɒpɪk/ adjective M20. radioisotopically /-ˈtɒpɪk-/ adverb L20.

radiolaria /ˌreɪdɪə(ʊ)ˈlɛːrɪə/ noun pl. L19.
[ORIGIN mod. Latin Radiolaria former order name, from late Latin radiolus faint ray, dim. of Latin RADIUS.]
Radiolarians collectively.

radiolarian /ˌreɪdɪə(ʊ)ˈlɛːrɪən/ noun & adjective. L19.
[ORIGIN from RADIOLARIA + -AN.]
▸A noun. A protozoan of any of several classes of the superclass Actinopoda, comprising marine planktonic organisms that have radiating axopodia and usu. siliceous skeletons with projecting spines. L19.
▸B adjective. Of, pertaining to, or derived from radiolarians. L19.
radiolarian chert (a cryptocrystalline type of) radiolarite. radiolarian earth unconsolidated siliceous rock formed from the remains of radiolaria. radiolarian ooze a siliceous marine sediment rich in the remains of the tests of radiolarians.
■ radiolarite noun (GEOLOGY) (a) sedimentary rock formed mainly from skeletal remains of radiolarians E20.

radiole /ˈreɪdɪəʊl/ noun. E20.
[ORIGIN Late Latin radiolus: see RADIOLARIA, -OLE¹.]
A spine or prickle of a sea urchin. Also radiole spine.

radiology /reɪdɪˈɒlədʒi/ noun. E20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + -OLOGY.]
The medical use of X-rays and other forms of radiation, esp. in diagnosis.
■ radiologic (chiefly US), radiological adjectives of, pertaining to, or concerned with radiology; (of warfare, weapons, etc.) involving the deliberate release of ionizing radiation or radioactive material in harmful quantities: E20. radiologically adverb E20. radiologist noun a person employing ionizing radiation or radioactive material in any field, esp. a medically qualified practitioner trained in the diagnostic use of X-rays E20.

radiometer /reɪdɪˈɒmɪtə/ noun. E18.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + -METER.]
†1 An instrument for measuring angles. rare. Only in E18.
2 An instrument for detecting or measuring the intensity of (esp. infrared) electromagnetic radiation. Also, an instrument for measuring the intensity of sound by means of its radiation pressure. L19.
3 An instrument for determining the amount of X-radiation administered to a patient. E20.
■ radio metric adjective (a) of or pertaining to a radiometer or its use; (b) of, pertaining to, or involving the measurement of radioactivity or ionizing radiation (radiometric dating, isotopic dating): L19. radio metrically adverb by a radiometric method E20. radiometry noun the use of a radiometer; spec. the detection and measurement of infrared radiation: L19.

radionic /reɪdɪˈɒnɪk/ adjective. M20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- after ELECTRONIC.]
†1 Of or pertaining to electronics, esp. as applied to radio. Only in M20.
2 Of, pertaining to, or practising radionics. M20.

radionics /reɪdɪˈɒnɪks/ noun. M20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- after ELECTRONICS.]
†1 Electronics, esp. those aspects of electronics connected with radio. US. Only in M20.
2 A form of alternative medicine based on the interpretation of characteristic radiation supposed to be emitted by living and other substances, and to be detectable by special electrical instruments. M20.

radiophonic /ˌreɪdɪə(ʊ)ˈfɒnɪk/ adjective. L19.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + PHONIC.]
1 Belonging to radiophony. Now rare or obsolete. L19.
2 Pertaining to or designating synthetic sound, esp. music, produced electronically with the aid of tape recorders, usually for use in broadcasting in conjunction with conventional material. M20.
■ radiophone noun (a) (now rare or obsolete) an instrument for producing sound by radiant energy; (b) a radio-telephone: L19. radiophonics noun (a) (treated as sing.) the production and use of radiophonic sound; (b) (treated as pl.) radiophonic sounds: M20. radiophony noun (now rare or obsolete) the production of sound by radiant energy L19.

radioscopy /reɪdɪˈɒskəpi/ noun. L19.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + -SCOPY.]
The examination of objects by means of X-rays; spec. fluoroscopy.
■ radioscope noun (obsolete exc. hist.) a fluoroscope L19. radioscopic adjective L19.

radiosensitive /ˌreɪdɪəʊˈsɛnsɪtɪv/ adjective. E20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + SENSITIVE adjective.]
Sensitive to the action of ionizing radiation.
■ radiosensitivity noun E20. radiosensitization noun M20. radiosensitize verb trans. M20. radiosensitizer noun a substance used to increase the sensitivity of an organism or tissue to ionizing radiation M20.

radiosonde /ˈreɪdɪəsɒnd/ noun. M20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + as SONDE.]
A set of meteorological instruments and a radio which transmits measurements of conditions at various heights when carried through the atmosphere, usu. by a balloon.
■ radiosondage noun (a) sounding of the atmosphere by radiosonde M20.

radio-telegraphy /ˌreɪdɪəʊtɪˈlɛgrəfi, -tɛ-/ noun. L19.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- 2 + TELEGRAPHY.]
Telegraphy by means of radio (rather than wires); wireless telegraphy.
■ radio-telegram noun a telegraphic message sent by radio E20. radio-telegraph noun an instrument for sending radiotelegrams E20. radio-telegraphic adjective E20.

radio-telephony /ˌreɪdɪəʊtɪˈlɛfəni, -tɛ-/ noun. E20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + TELEPHONY.]
Telephony in which the signal is transmitted by radio over part of the route; wireless telephony.
■ radio-telephonic adjective E20.

radiotherapy /ˌreɪdɪə(ʊ)ˈθɛrəpi/ noun. E20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + THERAPY.]
The treatment of disease by means of X-rays or other forms of ionizing radiation.
■ radiotherapeutic adjective of, pertaining to, or employing radiotherapy E20. radiotherapeutically adverb M20. radiotherapeutics noun = RADIOTHERAPY L19. radiotherapist noun a person who practises radiotherapy E20.

radiothon /ˈreɪdɪə(ʊ)θɒn/ noun. US. M20.
[ORIGIN from RADIO- + -ATHON.]
A prolonged radio broadcast by a person or group, usu. as a fund-raising event.

†radious adjective. LME.
[ORIGIN from Latin radiosus, from RADIUS: see -OUS.]
1 Radiant, bright. LME–L17.
2 Forming rays of light. rare. E–M18.

radish /ˈradɪʃ/ noun. OE.
[ORIGIN from Latin radic-, RADIX root; -ish perh. by blending with French radis.]
The crisp pungent root, most freq. with a pinkish-red skin and white flesh, of a widely cultivated cruciferous plant, Raphanus sativus, eaten raw in salads; this plant. Also (with specifying word), any of several other plants of the genus Raphanus.
sea radish, wild radish, etc. RAT-TAILED radish.

radium /ˈreɪdɪəm/ noun. L19.
[ORIGIN formed as RADIUS + -IUM.]
▸I 1 A radioactive metallic chemical element, atomic no. 88, which is one of the alkaline earth metals and occurs in pitchblende and other uranium ores (symbol Ra). L19.
2 (With following cap. letter.) Designating substances (mostly radioactive) now recognized as isotopes of other elements, which are formed successively in the radioactive series of radium. E20.
▸II 3 A smooth plain fabric with the sheen of silk. E20.
– COMB.: radium beam a beam of gamma radiation from a radium source, used in radiotherapy; radium bomb a container holding a large quantity of radium, used in radiotherapy as a source of a gamma ray beam; radium burn: caused by overexposure to radiation from radium; radium dial a watch or clock dial with the numbers and hands marked with radium to make them luminescent; radium needle: containing radium which can be inserted into tissue for radiotherapy; radium therapy radiotherapy using radiation from radium.
■ radiumize verb trans. subject to the action of radium E20.

radius /ˈreɪdɪəs/ noun & verb. L16.
[ORIGIN Latin = staff, spoke, ray.]
▸A noun. Pl. -ii /-ɪʌɪ/.
†1 A straight object such as a staff or bar. L16–M18.
2 ANATOMY & ZOOLOGY. One of the two bones of the forearm, extending from the humerus to the thumb side of the wrist and slightly shorter than the ulna; the corresponding bone of a tetrapod's foreleg or a bird's wing. L16.
3 A straight line from the centre of a circle or sphere to the circumference; a radial line of a curve, drawn from a given point such as a focus to any point on the curve. E17.
LARMOR radius. radius of curvature: see CURVATURE 1b. SCHWARZSCHILD radius. TURNING radius.
4 Any of a set of lines, rods, spokes, etc., diverging from a point like the radii of a circle; a radiating part. E18.
5 A circular area of which the extent is measured by the length of the radius of the circle which bounds it. M19.
H. GREEN The roads are to be watched within a radius of twenty miles. Times The wreckage was scattered over a radius of a mile.
radius of action the distance that an aircraft can cover so as to leave sufficient fuel for its return to base.
– COMB.: radius bar a bar pivoted at one end so that it can move in a circle or arc of a circle; radius rod = radius bar above; radius vector a variable line drawn from a fixed point as origin; spec. (ASTRONOMY) one joining a satellite or other celestial object to its primary.
▸B verb trans. Round off, give a rounded form to (a corner or end). M20.

radix /ˈradɪks, ˈreɪ-/ noun. Pl. -ices /-ɪsiːz/, -ixes. L16.
[ORIGIN Latin radix, radic- root of a plant.]
1 †a MATH. A root of a number. L16–E18. ▸b MATH. & COMPUTING = BASE *noun*¹ 7. L18.
†2 ASTROLOGY & ASTRONOMY. A fact used as a basis of calculation, as a nativity, a position of a planet, etc. E17–L18.
3 A thing in which something originates; a source. E17.
†4 PHILOLOGY. An original word or form from which other words are derived. M17–L18.

radknight /ˈradnʌɪt/ noun. LOE.
[ORIGIN from rād ROAD noun + cniht KNIGHT.]
ENGLISH HISTORY. Under the feudal system: a tenant holding land on condition of performing service on horseback.
■ Also radman noun LOE.

radly /ˈradli/ adverb. Long obsolete exc. Scot. OE.
[ORIGIN from RAD *adjective*¹ + -LY².]
Quickly, promptly.

Radnor /ˈradnə/ adjective & noun. M19.
[ORIGIN Abbreviation of Radnorshire, a former county in Wales.]
▸A adjective. Designating (a breed of) dark-faced sheep raised chiefly for meat. M19.
▸B noun. A Radnor sheep; the Radnor breed. M19.

radome /ˈreɪdəʊm/ noun. M20.
[ORIGIN Blend of RADAR and DOME.]
A dome or other structure, transparent to radio waves, protecting a radar aerial.

radon /ˈreɪdɒn/ noun. E20.
[ORIGIN from RADIUM after ARGON.]
A radioactive chemical element with a short half-life, atomic no. 86, which belongs to the group of noble gases and occurs naturally in trace amounts as a result of the decay of radium and other radioactive elements (symbol Rn).
– COMB.: radon seed a short tube containing radon that is used in radiotherapy as a source of alpha radiation.

radula /ˈradjʊlə/ noun. Pl. -lae /-liː/. M18.
[ORIGIN Latin = scraper, from radere scrape: see -ULE.]
†1 SURGERY. An instrument for scraping bones. Only in M18.
2 ZOOLOGY. The movable toothed or rasping structure in the mouth of a mollusc, used for scraping off and drawing in food particles. L19.
■ radular adjective L19.

radurization /ˌradjʊrʌɪˈzeɪʃ(ə)n/ noun. Also -isation. M20.
[ORIGIN from Latin radiare provide with rays, shine + durare make hard, preserve + -IZATION.]
The treatment of food with ionizing radiation so as to enhance its keeping qualities by killing many of the micro-organisms in it. Cf. RADAPPERTIZATION, RADICIDATION.

radwaste /ˈradweɪst/ noun. L20.
[ORIGIN Contr.]
= RADIOACTIVE waste.

RAE abbreviation.
Royal Aircraft Establishment.

Raelian /rʌɪˈiːlɪən/ noun & adjective. L20.
[ORIGIN from Rael, assumed name of Claude Vorilhon, French singer and journalist, author of The Message Given to me by Extraterrestrials (1974).]
▸A noun. A member of an atheistic cult based on the belief that humans originated from alien scientists who came to earth in UFOs. L20.
▸B adjective. Of or relating to this cult or its members. L20.

Raetic adjective & noun see RHAETIC.

RAF /colloq. raf/ abbreviation.
Royal Air Force; the members of this collectively.

rafale /rafal/ noun. Pl. pronounced same. E20.
[ORIGIN French, lit. 'gust of wind'.]
A series of bursts of gunfire; a drum roll.

raff /raf/ *noun*¹. ME.
[ORIGIN Last elem. of riff and raff s.v. RIFF *noun*¹ (whence RIFF-RAFF). Cf. also Swedish rafs rubbish. See also RAFT *noun*².]
†1 A class of people or things. See also riff and raff s.v. RIFF *noun*¹. Only in ME.
2 Alliteration; verse, esp. alliterative verse, of a low standard. Long arch. ME.
3 Worthless material, rubbish. obsolete exc. Scot. & dial. LME.
4 a = RIFF-RAFF noun 1. L17. ▸b A member of the riff-raff. L18.
a scaff and raff, scaff-raff: see SCAFF *noun*² 2.
5 A large number of. Now rare. L17.

resolvible /rɪ'zɒlvɪb(ə)l/ adjective. L17.
[ORIGIN formed as RESOLVER + -IBLE.]
= RESOLVABLE.

resonance /'rɛz(ə)nəns/ noun. LME.
[ORIGIN French treson(n)ance (mod. résonance) from Latin resonantia echo, from resonant-: see RESONANT, -ANCE.]
1 a The reinforcement or prolongation of sound by reflection, as from the walls of a hollow space, or by the synchronous vibration of a neighbouring object; a sound so prolonged, a resonant sound. LME. ▸b The property of an object of giving rise to this. M17. ▸c The amplification of the sound of the voice by the bones and cavities of the head and chest. Also MEDICINE, the sound produced by tapping parts of the body, used as an aid to diagnosis. E19. ▸d MECHANICS. A condition in which an object or system is subjected to an oscillating force having a frequency at or close to that of a natural vibration of the object or system; the resulting amplification of the natural vibration. L19. ▸e PHYSICS etc. A condition in which a particle is subjected to an oscillating influence (as an electromagnetic field or another particle) of such a frequency that energy transfer occurs or reaches a maximum; an instance of this. L19. ▸f ELECTRICITY. The condition in which a circuit or device produces the largest possible response to an applied oscillating signal, esp. when its inductive and its capacitative reactances are balanced. L19. ▸g ASTRONOMY. The occurrence of a simple ratio between the periods of revolution of two bodies about a single primary. E20. ▸h CHEMISTRY. = MESOMERISM. E20. ▸i PHYSICS & CHEMISTRY. The transition of a particle possessing a magnetic moment between different quantum states in the presence of a magnetic field and electromagnetic radiation of an appropriate frequency; a spectroscopic technique in which such phenomena are observed. M20. ▸j NUCLEAR PHYSICS. A short-lived particle or excited state of a particle, manifested as an increased probability of capture, excitation, etc. at certain defined energies. M20.

a H. ALLEN The last prolonged resonance of the bell . . died away. b Y. MENUHIN The resonance of those vaulting walls . . aided the single violin. d Encycl. Brit. Mechanical resonance is known to have built up to such large proportions as to be destructive.

2 fig. a A response in parallel or sympathy; a shared feeling or sense; an allusion, connotation, or feature reminiscent of another person or thing, an overtone in thought, art, language, etc. E17. ▸b The enhancement or enrichment of a colour in juxtaposition to a contrasting colour or colours. M20.

a F. KAPLAN In the portraits of the young women . . there are resonances of Georgina. b Burlington Magazine He could evoke from his blues and crimsons their fullest . . resonance.

– PHRASES: electron spin resonance: see ELECTRON *noun*². morphic resonance: see MORPHIC 1. nuclear magnetic resonance: see NUCLEAR adjective. tympanitic resonance: see TYMPANITIC 1.
– COMB.: resonance absorption NUCLEAR PHYSICS absorption of energy or of a particle under conditions of resonance; spec. resonance capture; resonance capture NUCLEAR PHYSICS absorption of a particle by an atomic nucleus which occurs only for certain well-defined values of particle energy; resonance chamber = RESONATOR 2; resonance energy (a) an energy value at which resonance occurs; (b) CHEMISTRY the extent of stabilization of a molecular structure attributed to mesomerism; resonance fluorescence: in which the light emitted has the same wavelength as that which excites the emission; resonance hybrid CHEMISTRY a molecular structure which is a combination of a number of mesomeric forms; resonance radiation (the radiation emitted in) resonance fluorescence; resonance scattering NUCLEAR PHYSICS elastic scattering of a particle by an atomic nucleus at an energy of the incident particle for which the scattering cross-section is large compared with that for adjacent energy values (cf. potential scattering s.v. POTENTIAL noun); resonance stabilization CHEMISTRY = resonance energy (b) above.

resonant /'rɛz(ə)nənt/ adjective & noun. L16.
[ORIGIN Old French & mod. French résonnant or Latin resonant- pres. ppl stem of resonare: see RESOUND verb, -ANT¹.]
▸A adjective 1 a Of a sound: echoing, resounding; continuing to sound or ring. L16. ▸b PHONETICS. Of a consonant: liquid, nasal. M20.

a A. PRYCE-JONES His voice was dark and resonant.

2 a Of a body, room, etc.: causing reinforcement or prolongation of sound, esp. by synchronous vibration. L16. ▸b Of a colour: enhancing or enriching another colour or colours by contrast. L19.

a J. TYNDALL Upon their resonant cases, . . sounding the same musical note.

3 Of a place: echoing or resounding with something. E19.

DISRAELI Resonant with the fall of statued fountains.

4 SCIENCE. Pertaining to, exhibiting, or bringing about resonance in a circuit, atom, etc. L19.
– SPECIAL COLLOCATIONS: resonant cavity = RESONATOR 3b. resonant frequency a frequency at which resonance (of any kind) takes place. resonant scattering NUCLEAR PHYSICS = resonance scattering s.v. RESONANCE.
▸B noun. PHONETICS. A liquid or nasal consonant. L19.
■ resonantly adverb L17.

resonate /'rɛz(ə)neɪt/ verb. L19.
[ORIGIN Latin resonat- pa. ppl stem of resonare: see RESOUND verb, -ATE³.]
1 verb intrans. Produce or manifest resonance; resound. L19. ▸b spec. in CHEMISTRY. Exhibit mesomerism (cf. RESONANCE 1h). Foll. by among or between different hypothetical structures. M20.

fig.: L. GORDON A letter that resonates with personal implications.

2 verb trans. Act as a resonator for; amplify (a sound etc.) by resonance. E20.
■ resonatory adjective (rare) producing resonance L19.

resonator /'rɛz(ə)neɪtə/ noun. M19.
[ORIGIN from RESONATE + -OR.]
1 ACOUSTICS. A device responding to a specific vibration frequency, and used for detecting it when it occurs in combination with other sounds. M19.
2 A structure or device which reinforces or amplifies sound by resonance, esp. an acoustical chamber of a musical instrument, such as the hollow body of a stringed instrument. L19.
3 ELECTRICITY. a A device which displays electrical resonance, esp. one used for the detection of radio waves. L19. ▸b A hollow enclosure with conducting walls capable of containing electromagnetic fields having particular frequencies of oscillation, and exchanging electrical energy with them, esp. as used to detect or amplify microwaves. Also cavity resonator. M20.
4 An object or system which resonates, in any other sense. L19.

attrib.: A. KOESTLER The theory of memory traces as selective resonator systems.

resorb /rɪ'sɔːb/ verb trans. M17.
[ORIGIN Latin resorbere, formed as RE- + sorbere drink in.]
Absorb again, reabsorb; esp. in PHYSIOLOGY, absorb into the circulation (material already in the body, esp. that has been incorporated into the tissue).

J. S. MARSHALL Bone is resorbed through the action of the osteoclast cells.

■ resorbence noun L19. resorbent adjective L18.

resorcin /rɪ'zɔːsɪn/ noun. Also †-ine. M19.
[ORIGIN from RES(IN noun + ORCIN.]
CHEMISTRY. = RESORCINOL. Freq. attrib., esp. in names of dyes.

resorcinol /rɪ'zɔːsɪnɒl/ noun. L19.
[ORIGIN from RESORCIN + -OL.]
CHEMISTRY. A crystalline phenol formerly obtained from galbanum and other resins but now made synthetically, and used in the manufacture of dyes, resins, etc., and in lotions and ointments to promote exfoliation of the skin; 1,3-dihydroxybenzene, $C_6H_4(OH)_2$.
■ resor'cylic adjective pertaining to or derived from resorcinol L19.

resorption /rɪ'zɔːpʃ(ə)n, -'sɔːp-/ noun. E19.
[ORIGIN from RESORB after absorb, absorption.]
Chiefly PHYSIOLOGY. The fact or process of reabsorption, esp. of an organ or tissue, or of a material previously excreted. Cf. RESORB verb.
■ resorptive adjective L19.

resort /rɪ'zɔːt/ noun. LME.
[ORIGIN Old French, from resortir: see RESORT verb.]
▸I 1 A thing to which one has recourse; the use of something as an aid, to give assistance, or as a means to an end. LME.
